Corey B. Rubenstein is a member (partner) of Stetler & Duffy, Ltd. and is one of the firm's original lawyers. He previously practiced in the Trial Group of McDermott, Will & Emery.

Mr. Rubenstein's practice is focused on the investigation, defense at trial, and appeal of white collar criminal matters, including:

- Financial Frauds
- Securities Frauds
- Public Corruption
- Antitrust
- Taxation
- Health Care
- Environmental
- RICO

He represents corporations in defending against criminal allegations as well as in conducting internal investigations of suspected wrongdoing. He also represents individuals who are the subjects of investigations, including corporate executives and directors, professionals, independent business persons, and public officials. Mr. Rubenstein's litigation practice also focuses on complex commercial civil cases and administrative matters.

His notable cases include the defense at trial and successful appeal of the Chicago City Treasurer, Miriam Santos; the dismissal before trial of a criminal OSHA violation against the nation's largest power line construction firm; and an internal investigation for the City of Minneapolis. He has argued numerous cases before the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

Mr. Rubenstein graduated cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1995. He received his undergraduate degree with highest distinction from the University of Michigan in 1992, where he was Phi Beta Kappa. He is a member of the bar of the State of Illinois, the general and trial bars of the United States District Court for Northern District of Illinois, and the bar of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, and he has been admitted pro hac vice to the bars of many other courts across the country.
